Aims and scope

BJEST publishes papers of a competitive standard with a suitable balance of practice and theory in a wide range of the latest engineering aspects. The scope covers a wide range of applications and topics in all engineering fields.

The purpose of this journal is to provide a forum for original research results on theory, design, experiments, and applications in all technical areas of engineering. Benha Engineering Journal, BJEST, focuses on aspects of electrical engineering, mechanical engineering, civil engineering, architectural and urban planning engineering, and basic engineering sciences. Other disciplines like integrated disciplines in engineering are especially welcomed, like aerospace technology, nanotechnology, material sciences, and computational methods. To broaden the scope of the journal, we have invited distinguished and high qualified experts to help the editorial board. BJEST welcomes your active participation and contribution, not only by submitting your work but also by making constructive suggestions to improve the journal.

Manuscript submission

- To submit your paper for consideration, please send your paper to bjest@beng.bu.edu.eg after preparing the required format for your paper. The journal operates a single-blind review process. Authors should list their names and affiliations on the manuscript, but the reviewers and the associate editor for each paper will remain anonymous. Specifically, conference records and book chapters that have been published previously are not acceptable unless and until they have been enhanced significantly. In special circumstances or on exceptional occasions, the editor may deem a contribution noteworthy enough to be exempted from this policy. Ensure that in "Comments to Editor-in-Chief" you state that the work being submitted has not been published elsewhere, nor is it under review currently by another publication.
